

The back-end will loop through through Pain, Type of Pain and Injury in no particular order, and depending on whether or not the original query gave the parameters. After gathering those three pieces of data, if the body-part is non-specific (leg, rather than ankle), it will ask for clarification, then choose the correct intent based on the combination of parameters.